Dear Parent/Guardian

HPV Vaccination

Your child's HPV (Human Papilloma Virus) vaccination is now due. As part of the NHS childhood immunisation programme, all girls and boys aged 12–14 in school year 8 are offered a single-dose HPV vaccine at school. This protects against HPV-related cancers such as cervical, penile, throat, and neck cancers.

Benefits of the HPV Vaccination

- Vaccinating boys and girls offers greater protection against cancer overall (cervical, genital and head and neck).
- Cervical cancer is the second most common cancer in women under 35 and incidences of cervical cancers caused by HPV have dropped by almost 90% in those vaccinated aged 12-13 years.
- Genital wart diagnoses have dropped significantly since the programme was extended.
